

THE MYSTERIOUS LIGHT

In the glistening sun, Jacob lays on the luscious green grass curiously thinking of why nature is so important. Unexpectedly and out of the blue, Jacob sees a light that's so bright, it could have been from heaven. Jacob's eyes tuned in to how bright the light truly was and at that moment he had a thought; a brave and courageous thought to follow the light to wherever it was leading. "Can I? Should I?" the voice inside him whispered. But in all honesty, Jacob already knew the answer to that, and the answer was "yes."

While Jacob finished packing his bag, he convincingly told himself, "I'm going to follow that light to the very end and I'll only stop 'till it's a speck." Time passed and Jacob could now feel the nice cold air that was blowing on his face and the horrendous pain in his feet from walking such a long time. It was at this point, unexpectedly, that Jacob reached the ominous Forest of Doom! Normally, Jacob would be very apprehensive when he comes to the Forest of Doom, because he is scared of the dark, but this time was different, he was not alone with his fears and his pockets full of worries. For this time, he's not worried at all, because of the mysterious light showing him the way.

With each step Jacob took, he knew he was getting closer to wherever this mysterious light was leading him. Then Jacob had a really poor feeling that he might be lost! Suddenly, Jacob heard a really low voice that reverberated through the forest, speaking in a low, deep, relaxing voice, as if it had all the time in the world. It said: "Hello Jacob. I'm the mysterious light that is guiding you through the forest. Oh, and by the way, you're not lost." Once the light stopped talking, Jacob was so relieved he wasn't lost, but he also was also filled with shock that something that he can't even see had just spoken to HIM!

Within an instant, Jacob noticed that the bright light was fading! Soon after, it was completely pitch black. You could say it was darker than midnight. Then Jacob reached a tree, the tree looked very old and delicate. The first thing Jacob noticed was that one side of the tree was dark and one side was very bright. Jacob then heard the light speak again and this time it said "Jacob, the answer to your question before is that nature is part of life." Then Jacob kindly asked the light which way was the exit from this place that was so dark and mysterious. It replied "sometimes in your worries you will only see darkness, but once you look harder, you will see the light in everything that you want to do."